Be a good idea to get some window stickers sorted out. I know a lot of people ask me about TBDev, IMOC and MR2OC because of my rear window stickers. I'd be glad to take off all my back ones and put an MR2.ie one up. I'll keep the TBDev ones on the side though. Although I'm currently missing 1 !

I'd be interested too, also a nice sticker i put on the back of my license plates would be cool, then i can reverse the plates at shows/taking pictures etc.

Good idea.

Also, might be an idea to get buisness cards - so, that if you see an MR2, you can leave it on their windscreen etc

I was thinking to just refer them to www.mr2.ie but maybe there are mr2 owners who don't have net access or aren't on regularly - if so, a phone number might also be an option. So, best way might be to leave a space for the phone number - if I leave a card on an MR2's windscreen, I'd put my phone number on it. So, whoever leaves the card gets contacted

Great work, getting the ball rolling quickly on here :) Also an idea if you want to set up a donation thing through paypal or something to pay for stickers or cards or whatever i'm sure a few euro here and there to keep the site running would be no problem for members :)

If we came up with a design we could go to sign/sticker makers individually. That way no one person is burdened with getting them all made up and sent out. It would obviously be better to have a single design so as each sticker is recognisable as MR2.ie

Hi guys, thanks for the offer, might come back to you on the fund raising but for now I can get the ball rolling on the print as I can ensure the right imagery/colours etc are used to keep the look consistent.

It's only 135 for 1,000 cards in full colour. He's coming back to me on the stickers but said it should be no problem.

I think Mark's suggestion of Paypal donations might be easiest. We could all do our own if we had the same artwork but if it is only 135 for 1000 in full colour, then most of us might only give out say 20-30 ? Not much point in each of us doing up a batch of 20-30.

My next door neighbour should be able to produce something for us if we come up with the design. I would be expecting mates rates from him as well.

Turns out it's 85eur if we only want 500 and he'll do the design for free. I think it might be worth getting the 1000 anyways..?? :dry:

I can always put up some Google ads to recoup the cost of the development/cards etc.

I'd say go with the 1000 - we may not give out a lot via dropping on windscreens but you might give a few to shops e.g. Proparts, CDA, Halfords etc and maybe give some out at Japfest, Dyno Days and other events we go to Google Ads might be an idea but no harm to have the paypal donation button as well :)

What about a banner for Japfest - because we will have a stand/area. Could be a couple of homemade A4 jobs ? Do we just want to put up "www.mr2.ie" ?

I know a guy who can print photo banners on canvas etc, but it would need to live somewhere after the event, would need poles, and probably a few hundred squid. Would look the dogs though. What do you think?

A few hundred quid might be a bit much ?

I know this isn't the same quality but might be good to get us going ?

<http://www.vistaprint.ie/custom-banners.aspx?pfid=016&xnav=pricingdetails>

27.99 fo a 180cm x 76cm - then you add 4.99 for uploading own logo and 8.99 for heavier outdoo vinyl. So, would come in about 40 euros.

Maybe if Google ads and Paypal donations bring in some cash, then maybe go for a canvas banner at that stage ?

I got them thanks for that. As for an idea on the style, I don't have time at the minute to figure one out. If anyone could come up with something today I will see about using that.

My neighbour will be able to do the out for me and we can size them up for the jeep. Looking at the MR2 Drivers logo I was thinking something along the lines of having the symbol on the left then the text following after it instead of above.

LOGO MR2.ie drivers

Fogive my reference to the logo, more time will be put to it tonight but it gives the general idea.

Yep a vinyl cut, but I was thinking more like this and the incorporate the MR2.ie into the logo so it would read like MR2.ie drivers but without the www bit as everybody knows that part. It also narrows it down to be more like a banner and be easier to see when moving, while also integrating the name with the web address.

<http://i261.photobucket.com/albums/ii72/5lip5lide/Copyofvinyl.jpg>

But the club and logo, banners etc have been your creation and I would not like to be overstepping my mark or railroad the sites branding.

When we see them in the skin maybe a bit of a session on Sunday to see what people think and / or would want in a sticker for their cars. As for now I think I will change it to my banner.

I thought I would resurrect one of the first threads posted on this site ;)

This is in response to or inspired by DSham's MR2.ie watch, key rings etc. I think the one thing we are missing is some kind of advertising/publicity on our cars. The standard way that most clubs do this is a vinyl self cling type sticker. These are easily applied, moved or removed as needed.

Here's my idea ...

<http://i797.photobucket.com/albums/yy254/markspence/MR2DRIVERS.jpg>

The font used here is the Toyota MR2 true type font (different form the normal site font) and the message is simple and visible.

So how much I hear you all cry????

Based on 20cmx5cm (roughly the size of my MR2OC sticker in my rear window - below), we are looking at roughly £55 for 50 or £65 for 100 delivered to one address. How these are distributed can be decided later (£1-2+postage sounds fair with profits put to good use for the club) but for now, anyone any thoughts?

<http://i797.photobucket.com/albums/yy254/markspence/MR2/Mourneandards/DSC00592.jpg> details on pricing through link below, this was only a quick search so there may be a cheaper supplier out there

If it looks like a finger, then proudly give it up to the world!<http://forum.thescubasite.com/mad/mad0035.gif>

I really like the original logo, the forum logo, the logo that is on our cards and been the mr2.ie logo from day one.

I personally don't like the idea of coming up with a new one all of a sudden. If some changes need to be made for it to suit a car sticker, fair enough, but it should be kept true to the original and not totally different. The idea of more of the MR2 outline or silhouette Dave, is good, maybe it wont look so much like a finger to non Mr2 drivers, who wont pick up on the side intake.

I see what you mean about the logo looking a little like a finger, I didn't even know what the logo referred to until I asked Quandry at the July show :blush:

Does it matter what it might be mis-interpreted as?

The main function of the stickers is to advertise to other MR2 drivers that the site exists. After all, don't you always look at a MR2 in a car park when you walk past it? The other use would be in traffic ... rather than trying to stop the other 2 you could just pass them and point to your back window :laugh:

Hi guys, apologies for the confusion. Now that I look at the logo I can see where the finger confusion comes from. At the time that I had the artwork made up I told my designer to give me a logo that represents something unmistakable about the MR2. I gave them about 20 pictures (Mk 1,2 & 3) to look at and they came back with the glowing side intake on the basis that it is a rare aspect that truly distinguishes our cars as thoroughbred (being rear engine).

Now that I think about it, I'm not sure that there is much that can be done with the pic to make it look less like a finger, but maybe between us we can keep it that way as our little secret. Sort of like how the Freemasons have a secret handshake we can have a secret logo that is unknown to the 'every day' person :)

Anyways thanks for the good chuckle this fine evening and kc+1 for Spanky helping peep out ;)

I had initially thought they would be vinyl self cling type. These are a little less permanent and easier to fine tune in terms of position. They would be small enough to mount on the rear, side or front windows but if the window was tinted then the effect would be lost slightly or totally depending on how 'private' your car is.

Samples would cost £12 for 3, as I don't think we would be a large enough potential customer to get any freebies.

We could make the orange writing and finger (oops intake logo) as bright as possible on a black background. As an internal sticker this will be the best you can get on a tinted window. We may also be able to mix and match i.e. 30 external + 70 internal presuming the self cling ones would be more popular.

I am thinking the vinyl cling type would be best Spanky, as you can take them on and off at leisure. I am not a fan of stickers of any kind these days. I was years ago, but now I find them chavish unless its a WRC or show car etc, so most of the time would not like these on the car, but would happily stick them on for meets/shows/runs etc.

Also, I have the rear 3 windows tinted, so again, that would be more suitable.

The vinyl cling type only work on the inside of the window and so aren't really compatible with any dark window tint. The ones that go on the outside are a more permanent super sticky affair so they are weatherproof.

I think if you wanted one that was noticeable then your options would be ... external (almost permanent) one or internal vinyl one on your windscreen (up behind your rear view mirror for e.g.)

Hmmmm.....I might just forget trying to go with any sort of logo, colour at all and just get a plain old and simple www.mr2.ie in neat, white, vinyl letters, like the stuff Dave was trying out a while back. I wouldn't mind leaving those on permanently, on my rear quarter windows. They will be small and neat and at least the wheels are white too. Obviously, everybody is free to put whatever they want on their car and personal taste and opinions come in too.

Yeah....that's what I will do, don't really want graphics or colours or anything.

However, if anyone is proposing to use the forum logo, at least try and agree on one design that is reasonably true to the original and all try to use that one design, rather than there being 20 different versions on everyones car.

How about 2 over all types of window sticker? A full orange one with the logo, and a plain white (or whatever colour you want) www.mr2.ie one for those who dont want graphics and logos? Just to simplify it and keep it to a minimum.

What do people think of that? Two distinct sticker types?

Good idea. If I was getting one I would just want a simple small one to put in the rear quarter window, others would prob want a bigger one for the rear window. So a bit of variation is a good idea.
