

Few suggestions

Performance sub-forum added to the Technical Section (ive nowhere to ask questions performance wise)

Break the How to into a section on its own,with sub-forums for engine-chasis and brakes-electric etc

Part Numbers - If every one chips in it'd be handy sub section,we had it on TGTT and filled it with everything from spark plug numbers to turbo recon numbers.

A "General Information of the MR2" section.

Even a copy and paste of important parts of something like this with added real time MPG,service schedule,standard colours,extra's from factory per Rev,weight etc

Like on (yes i know) TGTT- <http://www.toyotagtturbo.com/forums/showthread.php?t=52>

Useable Source- http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Toyota_MR2

Now i could draft this section up and get an admin or mod to approve it,save you guys the hassle and for people like me it would stop re-accuring threads.

I can get www.toyotagtturbo.com to put this site in the links section (ive known Dylan a few years) as long as it is reciprocated. Now TGTT is a huge site,in March alone it got 16,000,000 hits.Now theres always a few people there going for MR2's,and a few people using CT20's on the 4EFTE so they would use the link once provided.Plus,there are a few guys there that have a depth knowledge that would make our heads hurt and there all bang on,plus its an irish run-owned site.

And i should be adding to the How-to section here once i get the 2,i do tutorials with most cars i own as i like to get my hands dirty.

Anyhow,ill post back in a bit,im going to create a mock up site so you can see what im on about

Dan

Not a bad layout, lots of clear subsections and easy to find topics.

Looks like a good idea, I wonder how difficult it is to move stuff around the forums here or if you'd just have to make new sections and let the old ones die out?
