

cheap MR2 parts for sale, alloys etc

Posted by corofin12345 - 2011/02/17 14:25

hows it going all.. here i have bits and bobs for sale that have been lying in my garage for years and its time to shift them off.. all parts came off a 95 GT Limited MR2 in red because we were using the car as a ferrari replica build as seen in my newbie thread.. all parts sold will be on a collection basis only and cash up front as i want the buyer to have a look at the parts himself/herself to see the condition before parting way with their money.. sorry about the pictures as these parts have benn lying up for years but i can ensure you that all parts are in good condition.. (just dust in pictures) :)

Let me guess - you're in Corofin? I must get directions to pick up the rear window surround from you, if it's still available. I'm driving Limerick - Galway often enough. I could divert some evening when I'm coming back down.

Cheers,
Cathal.

I'll offer you €15.00 for the rear bumper side trim x2 and postage to Donegal.

To make this offer clear, the €15.00 is for items and postage to Donegal.

I didn't want them delivered personally, An Post only charge €3.80 for a packet that weighs up to 1/2 kg.
:dry:

Nothing lost, nothing gained.

i tried the post office before for sending bumpers and they laughed at me bud.. weight wasnt the issue, it was the size of the item, they want near 30euro registered.. would of been a big loss for me and noting at all gained.. 15euro all in and ill be raping myself... id take the 15euro collected even tho its a bit on the cheap side but that wont happen either for obvious reasons, i can arrange a courier but again that will be the guts of 20euro or so.. sorry but im not going to be stung on the larger items

Correct and I copied and pasted his own description.

<http://i67.photobucket.com/albums/h295/MartyJ1/mr7-1.jpg>

I offered €15.00 because he wants €10.00 on this site, so €5.00 should cover An Post.

I'll send you the extra for the postage.

Looking at the AnPost web site it should not cost that amount though.
