Another option is camskill.co.uk, or Joe the MR2 breaker in Tuam

Thanks for the replys.Last lad that looked at it said he tried a four tonne panel press to push the piston back and it wouldn't move it.I took it to another garage and they had a look and told me that one of the pistons had slightly twisted owing to the pads being nearly down and out.He worked the piston back and new pads €100.He said the piston is free but only with WD40 and to just see how it goes.(So far so good)Quandry have you joes phone number just incase mate and thanks again Quandry,mitch,Redmk1 and ricky.Cheers guys.I know the cars 21 years old but to be told you cant get new parts it felt like it should be in a musium and not on the road. :ohmy:
