Might be tomorrow before I get pics up because they're outside in the back garden and its raining all day here.

This pic isn't great quality - was when they were on my Spider - it's not pic specifically of the wheels but you can see them a bit.

hmm well at some stage I want to get mine uncurbed/repainted so I would be interested in borrowing yours. That might stretch to renting, seeing as you're a mate :cheer:

Anyone ?

you'd pay 100 euros for one tyre on its own. Given they're not top brands but still cheap :)

Very interested in alloys. Are the snow tyres ok to drive around in? I actually only bought rev3 alloys about 3weeks ago good condition but tyres are bald :(

Buddy livin in dublin can collect!

I don't honestly know - I used them for a few months with no problems. First time I ever had snow tyres on a car.

"to drive around in" - I would say yes. "To drive around in at 100mph 24/7" - I'd say no.

If you were buying these, my advice would be to use them as a stop gap until you had the cash to get all-weather tyres. You could buy the alloys and tyres for 125. Use the two all-weather tyres. Try sell on the 4 alloys and two snow tyres for 100 quid.

Down to 100 euros !!!

100 euros will only get you 1 tyre normally ! This is 4 alloys AND 4 tyres !! :)

I wanted to see if the Picasso could get a bit sideways ! :)

We were covered this morning but not a lot of traffic on local roads today, so tomorrow will be a lot worse, I reckon :(

Would have liked to get out in the 2 today in some (privately owned!) road/open space :)

Still for sale - don't forget - the two rear tyres are snow tyres. If this is a taste of our winters to come, a seasonal switch to set of snow tyres might be useful :)

Might have a buyer up north for you Spidey.

There is a new member on the OC from Belfast (I think) who is thinking of fitting rev3's in place of rev5's.

I have told him about yours but you could jump into the thread if you wish CLICKY

Apologies Tony. I had actually went onto mr2oc.co.uk and contacted the lad that Spanky suggested above and he had pm'd me saying he'd buy them. I obvioulsy didn't see my email telling me I'd had a pm from him.

So, I just pm'd him back as he had first refusal. If he's not looking or them anymore, I'll let me know.

Apologies for me being disorganised - my bad :(
