

Car covers

Posted by shemo30 - 2013/12/15 15:18

Word of warning lads and ladies... Car covers are crucial, just put mine on today and sad to say its a few weeks to late, had to give it a wash before putting the cover on. The car was covered in bird shit and ash from the chimleys around the estate, the ash has stained the paint and the car was covered in it. Very upsetting stuff. Hopefully it will all come out with T-cut and a lot of elbow grease.

=====

Re: Car covers

Posted by skybound - 2013/12/16 10:56

PS the quality of the car cover is doubly crucial..

Will also be T-cutting after hibernation due to blue residue left from cheap temporary tarpaulin.. :(

Sad lesson to learn, so hopefully showing my stupidity here might save someone else the grief.

"Dont skimp on your car cover quality :nono: :nono: - it will cost you more in the long run"

=====

Re: Car covers

Posted by shemo30 - 2013/12/16 11:48

I got a decent cover I must say got it for 55 quid. Can't remember the name of it doe

=====