

help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/09 16:41

I have a problem that someone might have a solution to

I just got a set of 30mm wheel spacers for the back of my car, However ! I didn't realise that they were originally meant for a Nissan , the problem is that all nissan nuts 12 x 1.25 have a head that is 21mm and I can't fit anything wider than 19mm in the alloys that I have , I don't want to use those long boy racer Nuts , Any ideas ??

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by Infamous - 2014/05/09 19:19

You could grind a set down to fit but I wouldn't recommend that as it would compromise their strength and could be potentially dangerous for you and other road users around you. So different spacers or thinner nuts are the only solution.

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/09 20:05

Hopefully I can find thinner nuts , I don't want to take them off they have the wheels right were I want them, Maybe someone on here will low where I can get The nuts I need !

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/09 20:38

Hopefully I can find thinner nuts , I don't want to take them off they have the wheels right were I want them, Maybe someone on here will low where I can get The nuts I need !

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by leesw20 - 2014/05/09 21:05

Use internal drive nuts/tuner nuts that's what I run on mine

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/09 22:06

I had to use those on the spacers , I never thought of using them on the wheels , today I put open ended nuts on them but they don't look great , if I don't find anything I could use the internal system.

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by Cashy - 2014/05/10 09:58

Same problem Dazzler, I had to buy a set of 20 Rays wheel nuts in black. So I'd say prob use those long boy racer nuts :dry: Grinding and cutting to fit isn't worth it with such a vital part like the wheels. You can get them in a nice subtle color like silver or black like I did. Avoid the anodized Purples and Greens though :fail:

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/10 15:00

Thanks cashy,
I just realised that subaru are the same thread pattern so i'll see if I can find a set from them , otherwise I'll have to give in and become a "manracer" B)

=====

Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by butler_767 - 2014/05/17 22:11

these should work

<http://www.micksgarage.com/proddetails.aspx?pid=1446537>

=====
Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/18 13:49

Thanks for that ,
They'll do the job nicely :)

=====
Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by butler_767 - 2014/05/18 18:42

no worries if your looking for them again I just searched nissan models

=====
Re: help with wheel nuts

Posted by dazzler mk2 - 2014/05/18 19:30

Cheers !
