

Suggestions for Aw11 Wheels???

Posted by KnightRider - 2014/12/26 17:48

My 1990 mk1 Mr2 is currently running on some slightly shabby looking teardrop alloys and while I know these are original I was wondering what everybody might suggest to replace them. I'm not looking at spending a huge sum of money. Cheers!

Get the teardrops polished! How's the car going for you so far?

Tear drops polished up do look well.
Another option is the wheels off a mk3 roadster.

They can be picked up cheap enough and IMO look well on a MK1.

Car is going great. Haven't been doing much since I got it but went for a few runs. Since it was a kind of Christmas present from my Mrs she didn't want me to go near it till after Christmas but I couldn't resist. Watched wheeler dealer mr2 episode and maybe polishing the wheels could work. I don't want to upset the handling.

Nice wheels. I looked into buying a gen 3 last year but total lack of boot space made me decide against it.

Are they the correct offset?

Very useful guide: <http://www.mr2oc.co.uk/know-your-2-knowledge-base/mr2-mk1.html?kbartid=85>

Offset is 35 so that should be ok I'm thinking. Not sure what tyre size they have or what I should use.

I have 195/50r15 on both my sets of alloys. It means tyres are reasonably cheap too.
