

Declaring mods to Insurance

Posted by SteveH - 2015/07/19 11:14

---

Does everyone do it?

Anyone under 30 have insurance on a 2 with declared mods?

If so, who with?

I want to do it, don't mind paying extra, but it's looking like nobody would touch me

=====

Re: Declaring mods to Insurance

Posted by Tedtiler - 2015/07/19 11:28

---

what type of mods?

=====

Re: Declaring mods to Insurance

Posted by SteveH - 2015/07/19 11:29

---

The premium affecting ones! lol

ECU, exhaust, intake, lowered and wheels

=====

Re: Declaring mods to Insurance

Posted by Tedtiler - 2015/07/19 12:02

---

Some can be argued, certainly the average jap import comes into the country with wheels and exhaust etc already on. I'd have thought it's only boost controllers etc that gets things expensive.

=====

Re: Declaring mods to Insurance

Posted by dmac - 2015/07/20 19:06

---

I would not declare any suspension mods the company might refuse to insure the car and then its on the system
Wouldnt bother saying anything

=====

Re: Declaring mods to Insurance

Posted by SteveH - 2015/07/20 19:27

---

Going to stick on Classic and move her car to my name. Selling my Legacy GTB so need a primary car. All mods declared. 570 a year, but its only 17 years old so im happy!

=====