

Mark s Toyota Mr2 Turbo rev 4

Posted by Mark s - 2015/08/31 20:31

Back to the Mr2 again. Sold my supra as it was too much money sitting in the garage and not getting used. 2-3 weeks after the sale I noticed Mikey was home again and this time ready to sell! I was 2 days late at noticing he had advertised again so was surprised that it wasn't snapped up straight away!

Long story short I drove up to outside slane to take a look and to be honest I was pleasantly surprised at the car for it being lying up for a good few years.. Mikey was straight and honest and a pleasure to deal with and we shook hands!

Picked it up the next day and it drove perfectly up the road.

Few pics when I got home last night, car needs a good polish and brakes sorting although front and rear grooved discs came with the car so they will help, then hopefully they will send me the log book from the south to the north or it might be a bit of a nightmare to get registered up here.

Cheers lads.. Were the seats and clocks a factory option as I have been told they have been added later as Toyota didn't do these options for the Mr2?

Those are JDM options. The 300kph speedo is a TRD upgrade part that you could buy in Japan. The Recaro seats were also a factory fitted option with the Rev4 + cars, I am pretty sure that the Recaros would normally have matching door cards but to be honest I prefer it the way you have it.

Cheers. It's not too bad for not being polished for a few years. Hopefully get it through MOT soon and then get the Rotary out :)

Absolutely horrible Mark... you should just sell up to me already and get it over with! :p
Best of luck with her!
